A MESSAGE

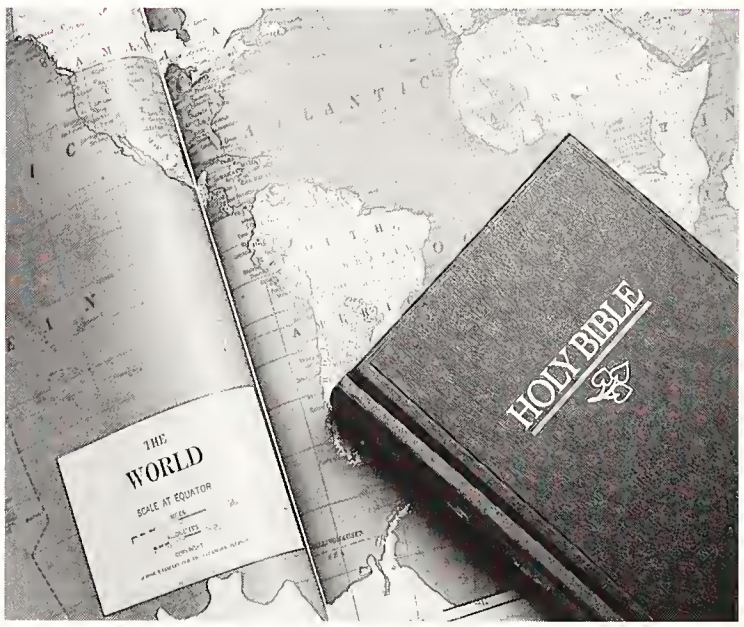
VISION • • • Reflects Our Past Directs Our Future

By Dr. Jon Swanson
Assistant to the President

In 1982, Tom Peters and Robert Waterman went In Search of Excellence and discovered that successful organizations know who they are, why they exist, where they are going, and who they are serving. As a result of this book and others, terms such as "customer service," "niche," "vision," and "stick to the knitting" have dominated conversation about leadership and strategic planning, even within the Church. Responding to the call for market sensitivity, books such as Megatrends 2000 and The Frog in the Kettle have attempted to describe the nature of the future marketplace. In George Barna's words, the latter book describes "What the future will be like, how the 'new values' will affect the Church, and how Christians need to respond to the changing environment."

There is a danger for the Church when we blindly adopt pop management theory. We are not a business, nor do we sell a product. Yet, Peters and Waterman merely echo a theme raised throughout Scripture: keep your eyes on the goal. Periodically, individuals and organizations must reconsider what they are doing and reaffirm their vision. Who we are, where we are going, how we want to be known, and what we are doing to succeed must be reestablished.

With changes in society, in the Church and at the College, some inside and outside the institution have expressed concern about the direction of Summit Christian College. Recent years have brought a change in name, reorganization of the academic calendar, addition of new programs, tight budgets, growing numbers of adult students and shifting attitudes toward Christian vocations. Although no one could identify particular problems, people wondered whether Summit Christian College was changing and what we were becoming.



Alumni are in denominational and ministry leadership roles across the country and throughout the world.

Recently, the Board of Governors affirmed a new vision statement for the College. Drafted by President Don Gerig, and discussed with many people at the College, it states that our goal is to produce educators, people-helpers, managers, and vocational church/parachurch workers who are marked by excellence in their professions, excited by interaction with Scripture, able to understand and penetrate culture, and able to develop a kingdom driven life system.

Although the expression is new, the ideals expressed are not. The vocations described represent the areas where the College can most effectively meet the spiritual and social needs of the world. Summit alumni have demonstrated professional excellence. They are excited by Scripture. They are changing our culture. They are kingdom driven.

Consider, for example, that in the city of Fort Wayne, our graduates are respected principals and teachers. A local mental health facility is consistently willing to hire our students because of the reputation established by our alumni. Alumni are in denominational and ministry leadership roles across the country.

But while a vision statement reflects the past, it should direct the future. This year the College has added majors and concentrations which will deepen the academic preparation of students for the four vocational areas. Our program in counseling has been supplemented with a degree in psychology. The psychology major allows a pre-graduate track and a track in family studies and human development. Starting next year, management students will be able to focus their preparation by concentrating in business, human resource management, marketing, and ministry management. A new General Studies major, which can be supplemented with concentrations in multicultural studies and behavioral sciences, opens options for people seeking to return to school to complete degrees and provides innovative approaches to paraprofessional and tent-making ministries.

St. Augustine sought to bring the best education of his time into the service of God. Although he is best known for his Confessions, he lays out his communication theory in On Christian Doctrine. In this work, he argues forcefully for taking the best of secular thought and

GRADUATION

83rd Commencement Exercises Held

Commencement exercises were conducted on the campus of Summit Christian College, Saturday, May 11, in the Activities Center. Forty-eight students received degrees and were challenged to further the Kingdom of God with their insight, knowledge and commitment to serve.

Dr. Clifford Schimmels, author and current professor of education at Wheaton College, addressed the 1991 graduates. A favorite of students and audiences, Dr. Schimmels is known for his enthusiasm for teaching, genuine interest, quick wit and wonderful storytelling.

The May 11 ceremony was the 83rd Commencement for Summit Christian College. With the class of 1991, the alumni count now totals over 7000. The state residency count for the 48 graduates is: Indiana -- 26; Ohio -- 9; Michigan -- 4; Illinois -- 3; Pennsylvania -- 2; Iowa -- 1; Minnesota -- 1; Virginia -- 1; and Kenya, Africa -- 1.

SUMMIT CHRISTIAN COLLEGE JOINS CHRISTIAN COLLEGE COALITION.

"Membership in the Christian College Coalition brings us into contact with resources we could not afford alone. These include research and seminar opportunities for faculty as well as specialized study opportunities for students. It cannot help but make us a stronger college," shares President Gerig.

The Christian College Coalition, a Washington-based association of approximately 80 colleges, was founded in 1976 to serve and strengthen regionally accredited colleges committed both to being excellent educational institutions and to keeping the Christian faith central to every facet of campus life.

Through joint programs, the Christian College Coalition helps member colleges enhance their efforts to make the Christian faith central for their students in all areas of life. Among its many opportunities for members the Coalition offers faculty development workshops, curriculum development, and professional development conferences.

IMPACT and VISION, composed of six Summit Christian College students, are traveling this summer representing the College, assisting in summer camps, conventions and conferences. The group members are serving as counselors, devotional leaders, program helpers, athletic assistants, and musicians. It is the desire of the two groups to interact with young people by sharing their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ and communicating news about Summit Christian College.

CHRISTIAN SERVICE PROVIDES "SERVING" EXPERIENCE

By Rev. Richard Baxter, Director of Christian Service

Summit Christian College students involve themselves weekly in service outreach to more than 60 churches and 23 organizations in the metropolitan Fort Wayne area through their Christian service projects. Students give more than 23,000 hours of volunteer service to these churches and agencies in an academic year.

Students serve as Sunday School teachers, Bible study leaders, children's church directors and helpers. They also serve as musicians, youth directors, assistant pastors and pastors in churches representing some 20 denominations and 12 independent churches.

Students provide volunteer service to social service agencies such as Big Brother/Big Sister of Fort Wayne, Day Break Children's Shelter, Salvation Army, Crisis Pregnancy Center, Brookmill Project, Blacklake Lodge and the Arthur J. Blaising Social Services.

During the 1990-91 academic year fourteen elementary education students aided the Catholic Charities in tutoring refugees who have settled in the Fort Wayne area. Seven of these students related to children of refugees in a non-graded public school classroom working closely with two Fort Wayne Community School teachers in teaching English as a second language. The department received the following comment from a supervisor on one student:

> "Gary is good with my boys. I have asked him to specifically spend time with our boys and he does a good job with being involved with them."

As part of her Christian Service project, Sondra Beard worked with children in the Resource Room at St. Paul Lutheran School.

Twelve students spent one evening a week relating to the residents at the Wood Youth Center, a temporary home for teens who are awaiting interaction with the juvenile court system. Rev. James Moser, pastor of StatewoodBaptist Church and chaplain at Wood Youth Center, provides an orientation to and supervision of Summit Christian College students. Thomas Hathaway, assistant superintendent, offers high praise for the quality of students and the valuable contribution they make as they aid the professional staff.

The purposes of Summit Christian College center on demonstrating commitment to Christ, practicing concern for others, and developing competency in a chosen area of service. All of this is done with the goal of becoming servant leaders of Christ and the people with whom students work. For this reason, every bachelor's program requires a supervised field work experience. This intensified ministry takes place off campus under the direct supervision of an approved field supervisor in a church or agency.

The academic internship also receives Christian service credit. Approxi-mately 25 students contributed more than 5,000 hours of service to 18 churches and 6 agencies during the 1990-91 academic year. Throughout the internship experience, students work under the close supervision of trained professionals. One senior counseling major included the following observation on the practicality of her service involvement:

NEW APPOINTMENTS

Richard Baxter has been appointed as Summit's Director of Christian Service. With 22 years of service in the College's C.S. Department, Dick looks forward continuing the department's tradition of placing Summit students in community outreach and service programs. Dick will also continue to serve as the College's Director of Institutional Research.

Bud Hamilton, former C.S. Director, has been appointed to the positions of Athletic Director for Summit and Assistant C.S. Director. Bud will give direction to the athletic department, coach the men's basketball team, and assist Dick Baxter in the C.S. Office.

WHY I TEACH SERVICE

by Gary Litwiller, Associate Professor of Management
Director, Program in Management and
Assistant Dean for Curriculum and Faculty Development

I teach service, first, because it should be a way of life for any Christian. "Your attitude should be the same as that of Christ Jesus: Who being in the very nature God, . . . made himself nothing, taking the very nature of a servant . . ." For me, it's this simple: The Christian life and servanthood go hand-in-hand.

Associate professor Gary Litwiller (r) teaches that the Christian life and servanthood go hand-in-hand.

As professor of Management, I teach service for two reasons. Every mission organization has missionaries, those gifted in evangelism and church planting, who are stuck in administration because there is no one to take on those responsibilities. Some churches have pastors, gifted in teaching and other areas, who must concentrate major amounts of time in administration and management. The same is true of many human service organizations. Last week I visited a community health nurse who heads the operation of a free health clinic for persons of need in Fort Wayne. She openly admits that she would rather care for patients than handle the administration and management of the clinic.

Managers and administrators with a servant attitude are needed in these organizations. Gifted and qualified managers can take care of administration so that others with different gifts are enabled to use their gifts. This is the picture the Apostle Paul gives us of the way the Body of Christ should function. I teach service for the extension of God's Kingdom.

Managers and administrators with servant hearts are also needed in business and industry. Public opinion polls today show that business is often synonymous with corruption. The Christian, with a servant attitude, can not live as Christ lived and make immoral decisions. Therefore the workplace needs the salt and light affects of servant Christians as an active testimony of the redeeming power of Jesus Christ. In fact, the workplace needs to be looked at as a mission field. I teach service for the extension of God's Kingdom through the redemption of management.

WILDERNESS CAMPING

Once again the Post Session Wilderness Camping class ventured to southern Wisconsin for a five-day expedition experience. The trip consisted of much teamwork, challenge, and support of Summit's belief that putting training into practice is true education.

The Wilderness Camping group takes a moment from canoeing down the Wisconsin River to give a salute.

PEN PAL PROJECT

✉ PEN PAL PROJECT SERVES UP UNEXPECTED OUTCOME ✉

Popular media and professional journals are speaking frequently of the need for greater collaboration between teacher preparation programs and schools. Summit Christian College has several such experiences. However, Dr. Alice Joy Weddle, program director in Teacher Education and professor of Teacher Education at Summit, wanted to try an experience where the college professor, classroom teacher, and their students actually worked together in planning and learning. Mr. David Spence, a Summit graduate and current elementary teacher, was eager to be involved.

After a period of thoughtful and insightful planning, the students in the "Teaching of Language Arts" course at Summit were matched with fifth grade students in David Spence's class at Lincoln Elementary School.

The two classrooms of students exchanged letters and writing assignments. Both classes were taught how to write a personal narrative. The elementary teacher and college professor collaborated on the assignment and method for teaching the process. The pen pals then exchanged their writing. In the next letter, the students shared suggestions and encouragement regarding each other's composition.

The pen pals also exchanged visits. The fifth grade class visited the campus to tour the radio station and to have lunch with their pen pals. The college students went to the elementary school one hour for six mornings to teach small groups of pen pals how to write stories. Previous to this, Dr. Weddle spent six hours in the elementary classroom team teaching language arts with the classroom teacher.

EXPECTED OUTCOMES

There were several expected outcomes of the Pen Pal Project including:

> College students learning to teach and evaluate the writing process of children,

> Elementary students being motivated to write letters and stories to share with a friend and to have exposure to a college campus,

> College professor to once again experience teaching elementary children and to build valuable connections with elementary teachers, and

> Elementary teacher to introduce new ways of teaching language arts and to develop a sense of partnership with the College.

The planned outcomes were successfully completed . . . but what a delight for everyone involved to experience the unexpected outcomes!

UNEXPECTED OUTCOMES

Lasting friendships were made. One elementary student has visited the home of his pen pal twice since the end of the project.

There was unbelievable enthusiasm. The fifth graders jumped up and down when Dr. Weddle arrived with the letters. The college students were disappointed when the letters did not arrive on the day they thought they would.

The success of the program has been heard. A teacher in another state is searching for a college or university which will establish a pen pal arrangement with his class.

The Pen Pal Project has been a great experience and one to be repeated by the Teacher Education Department of Summit Christian College. Sudent responses confirmed the success of the program . . . "

I like having a pen pal because she is very nice. You can tell them what's wrong and they give you advice."

- Fifth grade student

"To say, 'Good idea!' and get a beaming response made my day!"

1990 - 91 MEN'S BASKETBALL SEASON SUMMARY

As last year's season came to an exciting end, the expectations for this year began to build. As November rolled around, the momentum continued as the men entered a season full of promise. The psychology of the team became the determining factor behind this year's performances.

Last year's season held no expectations or pressures as the team was playing to improve on a winless season from the year before. This year's team sensed the pressure to perform at the beginning from the fans, their peers, and from themselves. As the first National statistics came out, even the NCCAA expected great things . . . the team was ranked eighth in the nation in Division II.

Becoming a competitive team is a big step. It is another big step to learn to play with and in that competitive atmosphere. The team learned many lessons on just what is needed to turn dreams and expectations into reality. As many of the players move into the third season of playing together, look for great things from them as they put together the ability to win with the winning attitude it takes to be consistent.

The Falcon cheerleaders helped to pump up the crowds and generate community spirit. (l to r) Amy Parker, Falcon Mascot, Holly Wright.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL 1990 - 91

This year's season centered around the theme of developing eternal friendships and the record of 4-14 cannot begin to relate the winning season that the Lady Falcons had in building their own little "community" among the team.

The season began with several players having little or no experience playing basketball, and as the team looks back, it is evident that major strides were taken in improvement. It was a group of young ladies that played very hard and did not give up and quit which would have been much easier.

The rewards of the season were in working through the tough times on and off the court, team Bible study, the sharing that took place, and overnight weekend trips which afforded more time to cement those eternal friendships.

using it to advance the Kingdom, just as the Israelites had taken gold from their Egyptian neighbors and built the tabernacle. Augustine understood the blending of academic rigor and spiritual fervor necessary for influential Christians in his age.

As thoughtful Christians, we need to use the concepts of vision, of niche, of customer responsiveness to clarify our commitments and priorities. At Summit, we have done that reflecting and we are optimistic. Our vision is not of buildings or programs or power structures. We are describing the people who will lead the Church during the next century. We want to be known for the quality of our people, those who serve here and those who go out from this community to serve Christ.

Serving

> "All the classroom lectures and book knowledge and techniques taught cannot compare with the actual experience dealing with individuals. The theories I learned are all great, but too bad people don't operate in nice, neat categories throughout daily life. No one can teach me how to accept rejection or obstacles in the counseling field. These are only learned through actual experiences. I had plenty of opportunity to evaluate what I was doing and the results due to this exposure."

Through the Christian service outreach into the community, students provide a tangible expression of their faith in Jesus Christ. In addition, they also exercise their spiritual gifts, ministry skills and abilities which helps in developing students who are competent in ministry.

PRESIDENT'S PERSPECTIVE

Not long ago I attended a conference of mission executives from around the country. What a thrill to bump into an alumnus of Summit Christian College there who was a leader in one of those mission organizations.

Many Sundays it is my privilege to speak in different churches on behalf of the College. What a thrill to bump into Summit Christian College alumni who are faithfully shepherding congregations of all sizes.

Recently I was talking with a teacher here in Fort Wayne (who is also an alumnus). He was absolutely ecstatic over the job being done in the classroom by one of our current Summit Christian College students.

What a thrill to still be a part of training people for effective service! The fact is that literally all over this world there are alumni serving the Lord in a variety of ways. And, all over the community current students do the same. In fact, our students still contribute over 30,000 hours of volunteer service every year to over 90 churches and social service agencies in the Fort Wayne area.

I, for one, am proud to be a part of this record of service. What a wonderful heritage we enjoy. I am certain our founders could not have imagined the variety of ways students and alumni serve today, but I am convinced they would be proud of the spirit with which they continue to serve. How appropriate is our Centennial Campaign theme, "Building on our Heritage of Service."

The core of what we are about as an institution, is still people. It is those alumni and students I referred to earlier. And, it is a host of faithful servants who make up the faculty and staff here at the College. These are people who not only demonstrate skill in their work, but also exemplify servanthood to those around them. The overwhelming majority of our faculty and staff are active in their churches, community organizations, and neighborhoods as a further expression of their concern to glorify God through their service.

You need to know that all of you are an integral part of this process as well. I marvel as day after day I see gifts coming to the College from our host of friends. The following pages will testify to the army of supportors we have. What an encouragement it is to read notes that often accompany those gifts assuring us of prayer support as well.

WE SIMPLY COULD NOT ACCOMPLISH WHAT WE DO THROUGH THE MINISTRY OF THIS COLLEGE WITHOUT ALL OF YOU!

We look to the future aggressively. With our look to the future however, we want to also keep a strong eye on our heritage. Pray with us that Summit Christian College will continue to be a place where as our Alma Mater says, "hearts are set aflame with zeal for loyal service in Christ the Savior's name."

What makes Summit Christian College one of the "Summits" of higher education? Seasonal weather makes the campus beautiful. Buildings and equipment enhance learning. But many colleges have charm and facilities. Educational summits are really people . . . people who achieve for the Kingdom!

SUMMIT

FROM THE DIRECTOR

Dear Friends,

I have been Alumni Director at Summit Christian College for almost five years now. It has been an honor and a privilege to be involved with you, the alumni of this great institution. I don't believe we can begin to understand the impact our alumni have had on the community of Fort Wayne and the world around us.

There is nothing in this world more important than serving God and His Church. That is why what we do here at Summit Christian College is so important. Our mission and desire is to prepare men and women for the Lord's service. We are still committed to that as we have been for the last 96 years.

May I share with you a concern of my heart? I fear that this world is squeezing us (the Church) into its mold. It seems there are fewer young people today planning on Christian ministry than previously. The material of the world seems to be affecting our career decisions. Not only is it having a profound impact on the future of the Church, but it also is one of the reasons that we struggle to have an adequate enrollment here at the College.

We need your help! PRAY the Lord of the harvest to call out laborers. PRAY for specific men and women in your church who seem to have a gift for ministry. Send us their names so we can encourage them to consider SUMMIT CHRISTIAN COLLEGE. Secondly, we need your prayerful financial assistance. Approximately 25% of our annual income comes from gifts and contributions of alumni and friends. That additional income is crucial to the financial health of the institution. Alumni giving has leveled off for the last four years while costs have continued to rise. We hope you will see it as a privilege and a ministry to be involved in the preparation of servants for the Lord. God bless you and give you strength for each day.

Sincerely,

Bill Gerig
